Montejo 495

One of the iconic “Casas Gemelas” is now a museum called Montejo 495 Casa Museo. It is one of the most emblematic manors in the capital city which has been turned into a museum showing the luxury with which families of the sisal haciendas owners in Yucatán lived, as its decoration and furniture are mostly original from the age, and they resemble the French palaces.

ARCHEOLOGICAL SITE

Dzibilchaltún

“The place where there are writings in stone” is located only 9.5 miles from Mérida. Its 12 sacbés (elevated roads covered in white stucco), start from the center connecting the buildings around. The most famous structure is the Templo de las Siete Muñecas (Seven Dolls Temple), where you can appreciate the equinoxes in a spectacular way. Besides, inside you will find a cenote called Xlakáh, with crystalline waters covered in water lilies, creating a breathtaking contrast with the sun.

MÉRIDA, SOUTHERN CULTURAL AND CULINARY CAPITAL CITY

The capital city of Yucatán can be considered as starting point to tour around the state. It was founded in 1542 and built over the ancient Mayan city of T'hó. It stands out for its wide variety of cultural and artistic attractions. It has been awarded as “World's Best Small City” and “Best Meetings Destination” by international media specialized in tourism.

You can feel a romantic environment along the streets of Mérida. The colonial architecture of the city has modern details; however, it preserves the colonial touch that speaks of a past full of happenings describing the passage of many emblematic characters that have made of the Yucatecan history, certainly, something to be told.

Mérida has a wide cultural, historic, entertaining, and culinary offer, so, we suggest starting your visit at the historic downtown, where you can appreciate a great variety of colonial buildings, museums, galleries, theatres, outdoors coffee shops, bars, traditional clothing, parks, hotels, and restaurants serving Yucatecan dishes from the region, as well as food from the national and international cuisine.

SAN ILDEFONSO CATHEDRAL

The San Ildefonso Cathedral is the result of the Spanish conquest, as several stones used in the construction were part of sacred Mayan temples. It is the oldest cathedral in the American continent, it was built during the second half of the 16th Century, and its construction took more than 40 years. It stands out for the monumentality of its architectural style and inside you can find the world's biggest indoors Cristo de la Unidad (Christ of the Unity).

MONUMENTO A LA PATRIA

Located at Paseo de Montejo Avenue, it is the most emblematic roundabout in Mérida, a work of the sculptor Rómulo Rojo, who by means of this artwork shows part of Mexico's history, from Tenochtitlán's foundation up to the mid-20th Century. In this monument you can find a lot of details from Yucatán, as the coat of arms of the city of Mérida, the Chacmol, the Mayan hut, and two armed and prostrated tiger knights. In the center you can see the Mexican symbol: the eagle devouring a snake.

PASEO DE MONTEJO AVENUE

The so-called Paseo de Montejo, named to honor the founder of the city of Mérida, Mr. Francisco de Montejo y León, known as “El Mozo”, it was built between 1886 and 1905, and it was inspired on Paris' Champs Elysées avenue.

Some of the most famous historic monuments in the city are located in this beautiful avenue, like the buildings known as Casas Gemelas (Twin Houses), the impressive Palacio Cantón, the Casa Museo Quinta Montes Molina, and the renowned Monumento a la Patria, among many others.
